NOTES TO TARIFF ITEMS 9.1 i 9.2.

In the case of opening a nostro letter of credit with deferred collateral deposit, if the confirmation by a foreign bank is conditioned upon the placement of a deposit, the Bank shall calculate and charge the dinar countervalue of the interest that would have been earned by placing the foreign currency deposit in the same amount and for the same period under market conditions.

Fees under tariff item 9 shall be calculated and charged "quarterly in advance" for the first quarter and for each full quarter during which the opened nostro letter of credit remains valid. In the period following the last full quarter of validity of the nostro letter of credit, the fee shall be calculated in advance for the number of months commenced within the validity period, with one-third of the stipulated quarterly fee charged for each commenced month.

In the event of an increase in the value of the letter of credit, as well as in the case of an extension of its validity period, the fee under the relevant tariff item shall be charged. For letters of credit with deferred payment, the fee shall be charged until the expiry of the payment obligation.

The client undertakes, at the Bank's request, to provide an appropriate instrument securing payment of fees for international operations services (standing order, blank promissory notes, guarantees and/or other forms of security).

Depending on the level of risk, a special arrangement fee ranging from 0.50% to 5% may also be agreed upon (charged as a one-time fee). In the case of issuing a nostro guarantee without collateral, if the confirmation by a foreign bank is conditioned upon placing a deposit, the Bank shall calculate and charge the RSD equivalent of the interest that would have been earned by placing the foreign currency deposit in the same amount and for the same period under market conditions.

Fees charged quarterly in advance shall be calculated for the first quarter and for each full quarter during which the issued guarantee remains valid. For the period following the last full quarter of the guaranteed validity, the fee shall be charged in advance for each commenced month in the amount of one-third of the stipulated quarterly fee. In the event of an increase in the guaranteed amount, extension of validity periods, or other amendments to the guaranteed terms and conditions, the fee specified in the tariff items relating to the issuance of guarantees shall be charged.

Collateral shall mean foreign currency and RSD deposits fixed for the validity period of the guarantee or loan. Other collateral instruments shall include the registration of a mortgage in favor of the Bank, pledge over an apartment, possessory pledge over goods, warehouse receipt, blank promissory notes, and contractual authorizations.
